Important Risk Warning

- Unit Trusts are investment products and some may involve derivatives. The investment decision is yours but you should not invest in the Unit Trusts unless the intermediary who sells it to you has explained to you that the product is suitable for you having regard to your financial situation, investment experience and investment objectives
- Unit Trusts are NOT equivalent to time deposits

Additional risks are disclosed in the section of “Risk disclosure” below. Please refer to it for details.

Unit trusts pool the resources of many investors into one large fund, which is then divided into shares, or ‘units’. They enable investors to diversify their investments into different markets and investment instruments such as equities, bonds, securities, currencies and warrants/derivatives. Unit trusts are managed by professional fund managers and have varying levels of risk and return according to the investment goal.

Why invest in unit trusts?

- Minimise risk and diversification – you spread your investments across a range of sectors, in different countries, with different levels of risk
- Peace of mind – fund managers have access to important information and research statistics from around the world so they are ideally positioned to identify investment opportunities
- Easy access to worldwide markets – your money can be invested in local and overseas markets that may not be accessible to individual investors
- Lower fees – a large number of investors participate in each fund, sharing the cost of making investments.
- Flexibility – you can buy and sell unit trusts on any dealing day (except on public holidays of the countries to which your fund is linked). Proceeds are normally paid within seven days
- Security – your investment is safe. Assets are held by trustees or custodians, who operate independently from fund managers.

Risk Disclosure

1. In the worst case scenario, the value of the funds may be worth substantially less than the original amount you invested (and in an extreme case could be worth nothing).
2. Funds which are invested in certain markets and companies (e.g. emerging, commodity markets and smaller companies, etc.) may also involve a higher degree of risk and are usually more sensitive to price movements.
3. Credit Risk/Interest Rate Risk – a fund that invests in fixed income securities may fall in value if interest rates change, and is subject to the credit risk that issuers may not make payments on such securities.

Price of the fund may have a high volatility due to investment in financial derivative instruments and may involve a greater degree of risk than in the case with conventional securities.

1. Counterparty Risk – a fund will be exposed to credit risk on the counterparties with which it trades in relation to financial derivative instrument contracts that are not traded on a recognised exchange. Such instruments are not afforded the same protections as may apply to participants trading financial derivative instruments on organised exchanges, such as the performance guarantee of an exchange clearing house. A fund will be subject to the possibility of insolvency, bankruptcy or default of a counter party with which a fund trades such instruments, which could result in substantial loss to a fund.
