About this illustration

This is an illustration of the total effect of fees, expenses and charges on each HK$1,000 contributed in the Constituent Funds named below. The fees, expenses and charges of a Constituent Fund are one of the factors that you should consider in making investment decisions across Constituent Funds. You should however also consider other important information such as the risks and the nature of the Constituent Fund, the attributes of relevant parties, the range and quality of services being offered and, most importantly, your own risk tolerance level and personal circumstances. The information about fees, expenses and charges set out in this table is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in one Constituent Fund with the cost of investing in other Constituent Funds.

The illustration has been prepared based on some assumptions that are the same for all Constituent Funds. The illustration assumes the following:

- a gross contribution of HK$1,000 is made in the respective Constituent Fund now and, being eligible to do so, you withdraw all of your accrued benefits arising from this contribution at the end of each time period indicated in the following table;
- for the purpose of this illustration only, the contribution has a 5% gross return each year [It is important to note that the assumed rate of return used in this document is for illustrative and comparative purposes only. The return is neither guaranteed nor based on past performance. The actual return may be different.]; and
- the expenses of the Constituent Funds (expressed as a percentage called the 'Fund Expense Ratio') remain the same for each Constituent Fund for all the periods shown in this illustration.
